Three Homes Are Waiting for JOSIE SHEPHARD, The Exiled Orphan.

'Why Should He Be in Illinois?"

LET JUSTICE BE DONE.

PRICE ONE CENT.

O'CLOCK

PRICE ONE CENT.

BRING BACK THE BOY.

Much Sympathy Aroused by the Story of the Exiled Orphan.

Mr. Grant's Affidavit of Willingness to Adopt Him.

The Committee's Action Based on In. sufficient Evidence.

A Peculiar Explanation Made by Supt. Carpenter.

The remarkable case of Joseph Shephard, the orphan, detailed in yesterday's EVENING World has speedily and thoroughly aroused public sympathy and indignation. It was the talk of the town last night, and the universal expression of opinion was that the boy should be immediately returned by the Juvenile Asylum to the relatives and friends, who are both able and anxious to care for and educate Letters are already pouring into THE EVEN-ING WORLD office from the fathers and mothers of New York, remonstrating against the hasty action of the asylum commistee in sending the child to the West and refusing to return him to his natural protectors. "Bring back the boy" is the burden of all these communications, and the indications are that this injustice, unless speedily righted, will grow into a public demand for the revision of the loose charity laws that render possible such a miscarriage of charity.

ALL THE MORE REMARKABLE. It is, of course, recognized on all sides that the Juvenile Asylum does a vast amount of work, and that the gentlemen on the Directory Board have only the welfare of their charges at heart. But on this very occount the case of Josic Shephard is held to be all the more extraordinary. The facts in the matter are deemed to be so clear that there is little room for discussion. The relatives of the boy have been endeavor ing for a year to secure his release. A grand mother and two uncles are able and willing mother and two uncles are able and willing to support him.

Moreover, Mr. Andrew Grant. of 530 West Thirty-ninth street, has been and is desirous of adopting him. That there can be no doubt on this particular point. The Evening World has secured Grant's affidavit to that effect. As to Mr. Grant's character and standing, indisputable testimony is given. THE INDENTUBE COMMITTEE.

The Indentures committee.

The Committee on Indentures, which had charge of the case of Joseph Shephard, as well as all other children who are sent West from the institution, is composed of Charles D. Adams, Chairman; Joseph F. Joy, Charles C. Peck, John M. Slade, John F. Plummer, John Byers, Daniet J. Holdee Gustav H. Schwab, Murray Williams an "illiam B Taylor. They are all well-km business men and lawyers of this city, a. are the most active of the twenty-four gentlemen who compose the Board of Directors of the institution. They hold their meetings at the building in Thirteenth street every other Monday evening. Mr. Joy presided at the meeting at which the little Shephard boy was sent West.

At each meeting a number of cases came before the committee for disposal, and, as Mr. Adams, who is a prominent lawyer, says, they are usually decided upon evidence that is furnished by the Superintendent, Mr. E. O. Carpenter, and the greatest care is usually taken to obtain the fullest information in regard to family and antecedents of a child before he is sent away.

"If there appears to be anybody who wants to take care of the child and is able to do so," says Mr. Adams, "we are only too glad to have hum taken off our hands. There was no such evidence before us in this case."

GREAT NEGLIGENCE SOMEWHERE.

It is urged in answer by the boy's friends that if the committee decided on the evidence before it there is no escape from the conclu-sion that the information regarding the friends and antecedents of the child had friends and antecedents of the child had been very imperfectly prepared and that there was great negligence somewhere. A number of reputable witnesses are ready to substantiate the testimony of Mrs. Shep-hard, the grandmother, that for a year she hard, the grandmother, that for a year she had been endeavoring to gain possession of the boy. She is, moreover, very specific in her statement that she made personal application to Mr. Carpenter himself for the custedy of the boy and that he promised his return at the expiration of the year.

That Mr. Carpenter, who does not profess to have a very clear recollection of the circumstances of the case, failed to bring this application to the attention of the committee would seem to explain their action.

A SHARD-POINTED CHESTION.

READY TO ADOPT THE BOY.

An Important Affidavit by Mr. Andrew Grant, Which is Respectfully Referred to the Directors of the Juvenile Asylum.

City end bouty of thew both , 50; Outur Great hairy duly sworn says, he wish at No. 500 make Think - with that in the city hear you. That he is manager of the Conscidence Fea Sais at ho 563 hulle Gasume and that he is ready to asoph The shield, Joseph Shepband and bring him up in his own family, an own as he is given the coaledy of the said child, by The new york promise day lum int when charge it have being run. mitted in May 1887. He further him says that he has been ready and welling to adapt the said breeple Shapland at any time willing the part year . Swom to before me Andrew Grand fusal of the committee to right the wrong committed?"

Is the case 'closed up for good," as he states?"

Another phase of the matter worthy of public attention is Mr. Carpenter's peculiar attempt at explanation on the score of Mr. Grant's demeanor before the Committee on Indentures after the boy had been sent West.

"Although I am not quite prepared to say so," he observed to the reporter, "I think that if Mrs. Shephard had had some one else with her than Mr. Grant on the evening she appeared before the committee the decision might have been different."

"How so?"

and that the boy will get an excellent home if he gets him back.

"I know that Mr. Grant has always had a great liking for children, and he takes great pride in his own, two of whom already occupy responsible positions in large downtown stores. I know also that he has frequently before interested himself in other children and has obtained places for boys where they could get a good start in life."

ASHORE IN THE GALE.

The Brig Carrara Stranded at Maussquan Inlet—Portious Rescues.

"How so?"
"Well, he did too much talking, and threatened to do this and that and the other thing, but you can't scare the committee, you

What did he say ?" "Oh, I can't remember what he said, but he talked too much."
Could such a matter prejudice the case of the boy before a committee of gentlemen?" was asked in astonishment.

WHO ARE THE PLIES? "Well, no, not exactly that, perhaps, but politeness pays, you know, and the old adage says, 'Molasses will catch more flies than vinegar.'"

Mr. Grant Makes an Affidavit to That Effect -His Reputable Standing.

Mr. Andrew Grant, who is manager of the store of the Consolidated Tea Company at the corner of Ninth avenue and Forty-first street, and who is willing to adopt Josie Shephard if the Juvenile Asylum people will oring him back, said to a reporter of THE EVENING WORLD last night:

"I have known Mrs. Shephard for years. She and her husband used to live in the same flat with us when they were in better circumstances. When she told me that the asylum authorities had refused to give up the child o her until it had been in the institution a year I thought it was useless to do anything intil that time had expired. And now, just when we were all anticipating the pleasure of soon having the boy back with us again, he s sent away without the slightest notice.

'It is all nonsense to say that he was not risited and they could not find us. My wife went with Mrs. Shephard to the asylum in One Hundred and Seventy-sixth street for four months, and after that, when Mrs. four months, and after that, when Mrs. Shephard went up there, she almost always took my little boy Tommy with her. I always liked that boy, he was so bright and full of life. I know I could make a fine lad of him, and often spoke to Mrs. Shephard about letting him come into my family. I have some pretty good boys and girls of my own, and four of them are now supporting themselves.

"Instead of being a burden to me, it would be a real pleasure to have the boy in my family, and I would pledge myself to care for him till he was of age. His old grandmother would then be able to see just as much of him as if she had him all to herself.

"A CRYING SHAME."

"A CEYING SHAME."

"You have no idea how much she loves that child, and it's a crying shame that she should be so cruelly robbed of him. Her grief and distress about him has broken her down more than any of her other misfortunes, and she told me only last night that she did not care to live any longer if she could not get Josie back.

"If there ever was a thoroughly honest, respectable and hard-working woman in this city, that woman is Mrs. Shephard. It seems almost incredible that such an outrage could be perpetrated in these times, and reparation so openly refused by those who have done this great injustice."

Mr. Grant, in order to strengthen his statements, made the affidavit, a fac-simile of which is given to-day, that he would adopt the boy and bring him up as his own son if necessary. "A CRYING SHAME."

MR. GRANT'S RESPONSIBILITY.

That Mr. Carpenter, who does not profess to have a very clear recollection of the circumstances of the case, failed to bring this application to the attention of the committee would seem to explain their action.

A SHARP-POINTED QUESTION.

But the pertinent question is asked, and is likely to be repeated, "Does Mr. Carpenter's neglect or absent-mindedness justify the relationship to the suppose of the company in which Mr. Grant is employed said:

"Mr. Grant is employed said:

"Mr. Grant is one of our most valuable and trusted employees. He has been with us for three years, and has managed our business at the Forty-first street branch ever since it was started. I can vouch for his honesty and responsibility, and there is not the slightest doubt that he can do as he says, in the slightest doubt that he can do as he says, in the slightest doubt that he can do as he says, in the slightest doubt that he can do as he says, in the slightest doubt that he can do as he says, in the slightest doubt that he company in which Mr. Grant is employed said:

"Mr. Grant is employed said:

"Mr. Grant is one of our most valuable and trusted employees. He has been with the slightest doubt that he company in which Mr. Grant is employed said:

"Mr. Grant is one of our most valuable and trusted employees. He has been with the since it was started. I can vouch for his honesty and responsibility, and there is not the slightest doubt that he company in which Mr.

Inlet-Perilous Rescues. ISPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.

POINT PLEASENT, N. J., June 29.-During the gale late last night the Italian brig Carrara, from Italy, was driven ashore at Manas-quan Inlet. The brig sent up the usual signal of distress, and the life-saving crew started to go to the rescue of the stranded vessel. The life-savers were unable to take off the captain and the crew of ten men until 5 o'clock this morning, when they were landed by means of the breeches buoy.

The captain of the brig reported that one of the crew had been washed overboard and of the crew had been washed overboard and drowned. The stranded brig lies hard on the beach, and it is expected that some difficulty will be experienced in floating her.

Capt. J. T. Havens, or the Life-Saving Service, telegraphed to the Merritt Coast Wrecking Company, at Stapleton, S. I., to send assistance to the stranded vessel. The wrecking-steamer Tuckshoe will arrive here this afternoon, when efforts will be made to float the brig at high water if the sea is not too rough.

too rough.

The brig is sixty-seven days out from Italy and is bound for Perth Amboy. She is commanded by Capt. Ciro Manganaro.

The Closing Quotations Open. High, Lose, Clos. 49% 49%

Canadian Pacific	66	66	50	663
Central Pacific	3034	3056	3034	80)
Chic., Burl. & Quiner	47	47	47	-47
Chic., Burl. & Quiney	11256	113	11254	113
Chicago & Northwest	106%	106%	106%	1061
Chie., Mil. & St. Paul	.64	6436	.64	64
Obje Rock Island & Pac	102%	103%	102%	108
Del., Lack. & Western	129%	120%	12992	1295
Delaware & Hudson Denver & Hip Grande	10936	100%	10034	109)
Kast Tenn., Va. & Ga.	95	917	0.00	143
E. Teau., Vs. & Gs. 24 pfd	23	49	23	23
Ft. Worth & Denver City	254	25%	2514	251
Louisville & Nashville	6432	7442	6412	544
Laka Shore	9.11	90%	2604	901
Lake Shore Lake Frie & Western pfd	44	44	44	44
Long Island	9314	9314	9314	935
Manbattan Consol	89)4	8134	82)4	87)
Michigan Central	79%	81	79%	803
Minneapolis & St. Louis pfd	10%	10%	1036	103
Minnouri Pacific	71%	72	73%	72
Missouri, Kansas & Texas	13	13%	13	185
New Jersey Central	8136	61%	81%	813
N. Y. & New England N. Y., Laze Eric & Western	3414	3914	2434	39)
Nortoik & Western	160	180	1617	163
Norfolk & Western, pfd	461	464	4614	46
Northern Pacific, ofd	612	6134	5116	511
Ontario & Western	130	1107	1412	341
Or. Bailway & Navigation	9012	9012	90%	903
Ore, Transcontinental	2314	2412	28%	34
Oregon Improvement	5734	59%	6734	56)
Pacific Mail	33%	3337	81136	333
Philadelphia & Reading	08 Ja	50	6832	883
Philadelphia Gas	86	- 86	86	.86
Pullman Palace Car Co	156	156	166	156
Rich. & West Point Ter	245	23	22%	223
St. Pani & Omaha	34%	103	103	104
St. Paul & Omaha pfd	10114	10134	10134	101
St. Louis & San Francisco	28 %	2834	2814	28
St. Louis & San Fran pfd	65 *	65	60	85
Texas Pacific,	2056	20%	2054	201
Tenn. Coal & Iron	27	27	27	97
Union Pacific	54	5454	54	545
Union Pacific	3/3	2334	23	23
Western Umon Telegraph	75%	76%	75%	755

New York Markets.

New York Marketa.

WHEAT.—December wheat opened at last night's closing quotation, 98%c. Market strong, and before nooh the quotation was tossed to 92%c. COTTON.—Futures opened unchanged: June, 10.07; July, 10.05; Aug., 10.15; Sept., 9.75; Oct., 2.67; Nov. and Dec., 9.48; Jan., 9.56; Feb. 9.46; March, 9.71; April, 9.78; May, 9.81. Market steady. Liverpool cable quiet, but steady. COFFER.—June opened unchanged at 12.65. Other months 10 points down on near and 20 to 40 down on far. July, 11c.; Aug., 10.05; Sept., 9.50; Oct., 9.75; Nov., 8.70; Dec., 9.75; Jan., 9.50; Feb. and March, 9.70; April, 9.75; May, 9.85. Market stelly.

her active.

Physical Physical States opened 2 points up, at 75 c. Sabsequently the quotation advanced to 75 c., but afterward adeclined to 75 c. Market active. SUMMER RATS, STRAWS, DERBYS AND HIGH HATS FROM 20 CENTS TO 46, MCCANN'S, 213 BOWERY, NEAR PEINOR ST.

White Flannel Tennis Trouse

YALE AND HARVARD EIGHTS.

Their Great Annual Race at New London To-Day.

NEW YORK, FRIDAY, JUNE 29, 1888.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 29-10.30 A. M. The weather is very cloudy, and the northeast wind blowing nearly nine miles an hour. The crowds of collegians which have been coming into town from all parts of the country for the past few days, rigged out in the sporting regalia peculiar to students, are busily engaged in putting up their fathers' shekels, arguing the merits of their favorites, and pronouncing anathemas upon the wind and weather. For this is the day set for the annual race of the Yale and Harvard eighters or the state of the Yale and Harvard eighters or the state of the Yale and Harvard eighters or the yale and the Yale and Harvard eighters or the yale and the Yale and Harvard eighters or the Yale and Harvard and weather. For this is the day set for the annual race of the Yale and Harvard eightoar crews.

But despite the possible postponement of the great race on account of the unfavorableness of the day, everything is in readiness for the contest.

"Capt." Bob Cook has sung his wonted and yearly praises of the Harvard eight, has fixed the winner's time at 19 seconds, has spoken with his usual mournful hopefulness of Yale's chances and has now again crawled back into his shell of silence.

Commencement girls are here in hundreds, for the most part wearing the blue. The crimson has the outside and better course, it being the blue's turn to take the eel grass. The latter knows every inch of the ground, however, and the grass should make but slight difference, if any, in her time.

That the Yales will win this afternoon seems to be the impression of nearly everybody. The betting this morning is on Yale, with odds of 10 to 7. Some bets are said to have been made at 5 to 3.

Few Harvard men are in town.

Two Yale Juniors are deploring the loss of $100 which they bet with a Boston bookmaker, who at once pocketed the money and jumped the town. The students suspected he had gone to New York on a Norwich boat.

Woodruff, Yale's heavy-weight, will not row. He will see the race from the launch and tells The Everning Woallo correspondent that his side will win.

Harvard, Capt. Cook says, is rowing nearer to the English stroke than any crew that ever rowed here.

The Race and Crews. This is considered the great eight-cared college contest of the year, the races with the eights of Pennsylvania and Columbia being more preliminary tests of the compara-tive strength of the crews of Harvard and Yale.

Since June 30, 1876, an annual race has been rowed by crews of the two great New England universities. The first two of these races occurred at Springfield. Since then New London has been the scene of the strug-

Yale, by winning in 1887, tied Harvard, each college then having won and lost six.

The race record of the twelve years is as follows:

L/GIG.	Winner.	Aime.
1876-June 30	Yalo	22, 02
1877-June 80	Harvard	24, 36
1878-June 28	Harvard
1879-June 27
1880-July 1	Yale	24. 27
1881-July 1
1882-June 30
1888-June #8
1884-June 26
1885-Jane 16	Harvard	95, 15 14
1886-July 2
18s7-July 1	Yale	21, 26
THIS	YEAR'S CREWS.
The second secon
The Yale crew	for this year's r	ace is as follows:
LOWB:

The personnel of the Harvard eight is Coxswan J. E. Whitner, '85, Newburyport, Mass., Substitutes G. A. Carpenter, of Chicago, and R. Jorham, of Northampton.

JOCKEY WOOD "VINDICATED."

But He Gets Only a Farthing Award for His Damaged Character. [BY CABLE TO THE PRESS NEWS ASSOCIATION.]

LONDON, June 29. - Wood, the famous ockey who sued a paper called the Licensed Victualler for damages on the ground that he had been falsely accused of unfair driving and other fraudulent practices on the turf, obtained to-day a verdict of one farthing. Wood was the man who was so promi-nently mentioned in the case of Sir George Chetwynd, who was also charged with unfair proceedings on the turf through the connivance of Wood. The litigation was the outcome of the speech made by Lord Durham against Sir George Chetwynd, and the case was looked upon as the preliminary skirmish of the suit that is to be tried between them.

The verdict is equivocal. While it shows that the legal evidence was technically insufficient to sustain the charges against Wood, the jury were evidently of the opinion that the plaintiff had not suffered injury to his character for which the defendant need pay.

Mr. Bigelow's Banquet.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO PRESS NEWS ASSOCIATION.] BRUSSELS, June 29.-A banquet to celebrate the opening of the American section of the Brussels Exposition was given at the Hotel Britannique last night by Mr. John Bigelow, the United States Commissioner. An interesting feature of the banquet was a toast to King Leopold by Minister Lambert Free, which was followed by a toast to President Cleveland, offered by Prince de Chimay.

Stanley Said to Se the White Pashs. PEPECIAL CABLE TO PRESS NEWS ASSOCIATION, 1

London, June 29.-The British Foreign Office has received official reports from its agents in the Soudan fully confirming the statement from the South that a white Pasha had appeared in the Bahr-el-Ghazel. Experts in the Foreign Office who have ex-mined advices received from all sources up to the present, are confident that the white Pasha is Henry M. Stanley.

The Maxim Gun Sold.

BY SPECIAL CABLE TO THE PRESS NEWS ASSOCIATION.) Paris, June 29 .- The French Government has bought the new Maxim repeating gun, which has sustained the test of sixty shots a minute.

CHRONIC nasal catarra positively cured by Dr. Sage's REMEDY.

DUCHESS LILLIAN.

The Duke of Marlborough Weds Mrs.

Mayor Hewitt Performs the Cermony at His Office.

Democratic Marriage, Without Bridesmaids or Groomsmen.

Mayor Hewitt Allowed to Kiss the Blushing Bride.

There were no wedding bells. No melodious march. No orange blossoms. No gowned parson, and no gathering of rustling silks and swallow-

DURE OF MARLEOROUGH.

There was just one quite baid, middle-aged man n a pepper-and-salt four-button cutaway and ligh rousers; a tall, queenly beautiful young woman is cafe au lait gown with embroidery of the same color, a dove's wing of the same color for a bonne and a sprig of lilles of the valley on her bosom and New York's keen-eyed, nervous little Mayor. But there was a ducal wedding this afternoon ust the same, and in place of the domed church and carved chancel there was the freshly frescoe office of the Mayor and his own desk for a pulpit. The wedding throng consisted of a dozen friends a dozen city officials and a dozen reporters. The ceremony was read by the officiating Mayor from a card, and when it was completed the Duke of Mariborough had been welded fast to one of New York's fairest daughters, Mrs. Lillian W.

The portraits of a dozen Mayors looked on approvingly at this democratic marriage of the Engish aristocrat and his American bride. His Honor said, after asking if any one knew any reason why the wedding should not take place: "Do you, George Charles Churchill Spencer, Dake of Mariberough, take this woman to be your lawfully wedded wife, promising to abide with her and to cleave to her through sun and storm, preserity and adversity till death you do part ?" The groom replied firmly "I do."

"And you, Lulian Warren Hamersley, rou take this man to be your husband ?" The bride assented, and then the Mayor con studed the ceremony with "Place the ring on the bird finger of the left hand."

The Duke placed a narrow, oval, plain gold ring on the hand of the bride, and the Mayor pronounced them man and wife.

Then he said: "Now, Your Grace, if you will permit me the only privilege I may enjoy as Mayor, and perhaps the only opportunity of saluting s

Mayor was getting mixed, and he incontinently planted a kiss upon the lips of the blushing bride, while everybody else wished he was Mayor.

There was a little embarrassing ellence just here, and the Mayor relieved it by turning to Tom Costigan, who was standing behind the Mayor's desk as much as his big frame can be said to be standing much as his big frame can be said to be standing "behind" anything, and said:

"Now, Costigan: now's your chance!"
The heavyweight politician showed half an acre of blush, but did not offer to saints the bride.
The frien's present at the ceremony were mr. Creighton Webb, who officiated as best man; Mr. Warl McAllister and daughter. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clews,
Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Fish, Mr. Beckwith, Mr.
Arthur Leary, Mrs. Cruger, Mr. and Mrs. Spedden and Mr. Leonard Jerome.
Here is a copy of the contract:

THE CONTRACT. Groom's Name—George Charles Spencer, Duke fariborough. Born—Bienheim, Woodstock, England; age forty-Ve. F-ther's Name—John Winston. Mother's Maiden Name—Frances Ann Jane

Mother's Maiden Name-Frances Ann Jane Tempest.

Number of Groom's Marriage-Second.

Bride's Name-Lilly Warren Hamersley.

Age-Thirty-four. Color-White.

Horn-Troy, N. Y.

Father's name-Cloero Price.

Mother's maiden name-Elizabeth Homer Paine.

No. of marriage-Second.

(Signed)

Marlbohough, (groom),

Lilly Warren Hamersley, (bride),

ROBERT SEWELL.

Witnesses.

ROBERT SEWELL. WALTER R. GILLETTE, Witnesses.

ROBERT SEWELL.
WALTER R. GILLETTE, Witnesses.

WALTER R. GILLETTE, Witnesses.

WALTER R. GILLETTE, Witnesses.

The Duke and the newly made Duchess will said for Europe to-morrow.
Shortly after noon the Duke, clad in a dark gray check cuttaway frock suit, carnations in buttonnole, accompanied by Mr. Leonard Jerome, the father-in-law of the Duke's brother. Lord Randolph Caurchill, stepped into a bausom on the Broadway side of the Albemarie Hotel.

"I believe the Duke is going to be married," said clerk Parker, who up to this time had not said a word to an Evening Woald recorder who had been waiting for a sight of His Grace for over an hour in expectation of something of the zind.

This tip was sufficient, and hardly had the hansom turned down Fifth avenue when the reporter, thinking it would stop somewhere between Twenty-third and Fourteenin street, followed after on foot, running a little so as not to lose sight of the distinguished party. The red wheels of the cab crossed Fourteenth atreet, and the reporter, who was getting itred, looked about for a cab.

There was none in sight, and the red wheels speeding out of sight. But a light Democrat wagon, with the name. "L. Gouriey, builder," on it, was jogging along fifth avenue, and the resporter jumped in, and not until he had got through panting did het lithe astonished driver who he was. Then he got interested himself and kept up a lively pace close to the Duke's equipage as far as the south end of Washington Park and Fourth street.

The red wheels turned east on Fourth street and south on Wooster atreet. The builder's wagon was going in another direction, and the reporter had to leg it again.

The reporter did not lose sight of the Duke's hansom until it reached Canal st.

Here for a minute nothing could ce seen of it, but it showed up again on Broadway, and the reporter followed the wedding party.

Mrs. Hamersley came down to the Mayor's Office in a carriage drawn by while horses, sind accompanied by Mrs. Cruger.

The first rumors of the marriage became current of such a character as to give rise to gossip. It became known in some way or other that a correspondence between them had been commenced after the Duke's strivist in England and that it had coulminated towerds the end of the winter in his making her a proposal of marriage.

Hamersley.

Mrs. Louis Hamerstey is a remarkably handsome woman, tall and a pronounced blonde, and is now probably not very much over thirty years of age. She was a Miss Lillie Price, of Troy, and a daughter of a Commodore in the United States Navy when she met Louis Hamersley in 1873. In January, 1835, Mr. Hamersley's tather died, leaving his son his entire fortune, roughly estimated at that time to be $6,000,000. The money had come into the Hamersley family through the elder Hamersley's wife, who was a Miss Masson, a member of one of the wealthlest of the old New York families. Four months after his father's death Louis stamersley followed him to the grave. He left his wife a life interest in the entire estate with an income estimated at $350,000, directing her to distribute the money among various chaffiles at her desta unless a male heir was born to his cousin, J. Hooker Hamersley. This will was contested, but in January, 1886, the contest was decided in Mrs. Hamersley's favor, although an appeal has been taken. In making his decision the Surrogate simply said that Mrs. Hamersley's dower in her husband's estate was more valuable than the life interest which he had given her, and refused to believe that Mrs. Hamersley's fortune, for by the terms of her former husband's will the property will go to the child or children of her cousin, Mr. Hooker Hamersley. This gentleman married Miss Cuisholm a few months ago, so that the Duke's bride may not long hold her present large fortune. There has been muon curiosity and speculation of Mrs. Hamersley's down in the nearly sold the history of England. He had a son by that marriage, who will be the heart of his dukedom. The Buke of Mariborough is no pout of rank the tenth Duke in the United Kingdom. He is now ab

MISS GWYNNE'S MARRIAGE.

Bridegroom Gill Says that It Was Private at Her Request. Mr. William Fearing Gill, who was pri-

ately married to Miss Edith Olive Gwynne, sister of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, or Tuesday evening in Miss Gwynne's apartments at 80 Madison avenue, told an Evenino Wosld reporter this morning that he expected to start at 1 p. m. to-day to join his wife and her sister Cetti, at Narragansett Pier, where they went Wednesday.

The marriage occurred at 10 o'clock. The two persons united had been engaged for some time, but the time, place and style of the wedding were determined by the bride very suddenly.

She and her sister had planned to spend some time this summer at their summer resort, Sunnymede, at Narragansett Pier, and a woman friend was going to chaperon them.

The bride-to-be changed her mind, however, and decided upon the wedding, after which she was to go to Salter's Island, at the mouth of the Kennebec River, with her husband, and her sister was to go to Narragansett. Tuesday evening in Miss Gwynne's apart nott.

On Tuesday afternoon these plans ours upset by a telegram from the friend saying that it would be impossible for her to go to Narragansett.

The names of the minister and witnesses to the wedding are carefully withheld. Mr. Gill would only say that the event was very

The bride was married in an unpretentious

The bride was married in an unpretentious travelling costume of a cuir color and brown trimmings. She is a brunette, thirty years old, tall and well formed.

Mr. Gill wore a dark business suit. He expects to stay at Narragansett a few days and then spend the rest of the summer with his bride on Salter's Island, after which he will return to New York and engage in the book-publishing business.

He says he will live in the La Plaza Hotel at Fifty-ninth street and Fifth avenue.

"The privacy of the wedding was my wife's idea," he said. "She desired it that way and her wish was gratified. She also way and her wish was gratified. She also wished the wedding to take place before she went away.

"I desired to have it announced in the papers, but my wife's stepfather, Mr. Albert Matthews, of 48 East Twenty-sixth street, would not listen to that. He did not know about the wedding until Wednesday morning.

Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt knew it was to take place some time and so did his wife."

FERRY-BOATS CRASH TOGETHER. n Alarming Collision on the North River-

A collision between two ferry-boats on the North River this morning at 7 o'clock came North River this morning at 7 o'clock came very near resulting in a panic and consequent loss of life. Fortunately, no person was injured, but the occurrence should prove a warning to the captains of the boats. The Hoboken ferry-boat Musconetoong was about to enter the Christomier street slip when the West Shore ferry steamer Newburg on her down trip to Jay street ran close in shore.

No Loss of Life.

The captain of the Musconetcong, pre-suming that the Newburg would drop astern of him, continued on, but the Newburg bore down on the Musconetcong and a collision was imminent.

down on the Musconetcong and a collision was imminent.

The Musconetcong was immediately backed, but the movement was not quick enough, and the Newburg's bow, which is a few inches higher than the Musconetcong's, glided over that of the other vessel, and tore through the rail, carrying it away and making kindling wood of it.

There were not many passengers on the boats at the time, but those who were present watched the crash with alarm. Everybody had time enough to get out of the way, and did so.

The Newburg was not damaged, but the and did so.

The Newburg was not damaged, but the Musconetcong is laid up at the slip at Hoboken, where ship carpenters are putting on a new rail on one side

HAS THE $41,000 COME BACK?

Strange, Undenied and Unvertiled Rumo Concerning the May Express Mystery.

The $41,000 express package robbery which ccurred on May 8, is recalled by a rumor occurred on May 8, is recalled by a rumor that a check for the full amount had been sent to the directors of the American Exchange Bank by President John Hoey, of the Adams Express Company.

An Evenno World reporter called upon Mr. Dumont Clark, Vice-President of the bank, this morning. That gentleman smiled as he said: "Really, I can't say anything about it at present. You might see the express people." At President Hoey's office and at Pinkerton's Detective Agency there was an equal lack of willingness to give information. affirmative or negative.

Baseball Season, 1888.

O'CLOCK

Her Distracted Parents Searching the City for Her.

Seen, and Her Father Belleves That Some One Attracted by Her Beauty Has Carried Her Off-The Central Park Lake and Reservoirs Dragged - The Police

Nothing so appeals to the tender sympathies as the sorrow of a mother at the loss of her child, and when that loss is not by death

Mrs. Christian Ross, the mother of Charlie Ross, whose disappearance from the little world that knew him was complete mourned with a heart-rending grief, and died of a broken heart. The father, having spent his small fortune in the fruitless search for his boy, still lives, but with spirits broken.

now grown to man-MISSING GIRL. good, among strangers, is probably unaware of his own name, and the sorrow of which he is the object. The whole nation grew sympathetic during the search for Charlie Ross, and grieved with the parents.

And what I ids fair to be a parallel case ocours in this city. Pierre August Wahlberg, his wife and two children, Helen Maria and Flora, came to this country from Sweden a year ago, and a few weeks since another little one was born to them. They lived on the upper floor of the house 157 East Eighty-seventh street, and the father worked as a furniture-maker at Mace's factory in East Houston street.

Contented with themselves, the little family have never learned to speak the English language, and know only a few brief words.
Helen would be four years old in October next. She was a beautiful, sunny-haired, plump little one. Her great, round eyes were blue and deep as the sea, They were fringed with long, heavy lashes, and peered out from a round, plump face.
Helen had been permitted to sit on the doorstone at the foot of the stairs, on the street, two or three times this summer, and there had been the object of much admiring attention from passers. And all this warmed the proud heart of the mother.
From the neighboring children Helen had learned to say "Hello!" she could say "up'tairs" when she desired to return to the family rooms, and could bid her new-found playmates "good-by" in a sweet, musical voice.
But that was the extent of her English vocabulary.
Little Helen sat on this doorstone at 11 o'clock on Wednesday morning merrily humming to herself. And Mamma Wahlberg saw her there from the window above.
But five minutes later, peering anxiously out again, the mother's eye could not disfew weeks since another little one was born in sweeten, and the scars are nearly as large as pennies.

An Everino World reporter called at the house this morning. He found Mrs. Wahlberg, a tall, motherly woman, with wavy chestuut hair, walking the floor with a babe in her arms. She could not speak a word of English, but there was in her mute face the suffering and grief of a mother robbed of her child.

Her eyes betokened much weeping and lack of sleep. Through Mrs. Jansen, a neighbor, who acted as interpreter, Mrs. Wahlberg gave the description above.

Her mind had conjured up all sorts of mishaps which might befall her child, and she was almost frantic.

seventh Precinct, has been specially detailed to search for the lost one, and every policeman in the city has been instructed to be on the lookout for her.

Every mother in the city will earnestly hope that the little one will be returned to her mother's arms.

A Liberal Reward

WAS SHE KIDNAPPED? Pretty Four-Year-Old Helen Wahlberg Missing.

She was Mitting on the Steep When Last Alding Wahlberg in the Search.

its sadness is multiplied.

saw her there from the window above.

But five minutes later, peering anxiously out again, the mother's eye could not discern the babe, and she has not been seen since by any one who knew her.

Inquiry was made among the neighbors, but no one had seen the child. When August came home at night to his hearthstone and was told that Helen was lost he became quite distracted.

came home at night to his hearthstone and was told that Helen was lost he became quite distracted.

Without waiting for dinner he set out on a search, which has not ceased yet. He walked down one side and up the other of every street from Ninetieth to Forty-second, peering in at every window from Park avenue to East River, but no glimpse has he caught of his little one.

The father visited the Central Park station and Police Headquarters, and a general alarm was sent out, but not until last night. Helen could tell her own name, which is pretty much the same in English and in Swedish. She pronounced it "Helen Marie Wahlbay." She wore on Wednesday a garnet waist and kilted skirt; well-worn, but not ragged button shoes: drawers and red stockings. Her hair is light yellow, banged short in front and worn long and straight combed on her shoulders.

She wore a mixed straw sailor hat, with dark red ribbon streamers. Her brows are very light, and on the centre of her forehead, at the roots of the hair, is a scar, received when a baby.

On her right arm are three vaccination marks, about one and a half inches apart, and forming a triangle. She was vaccinated in Sweden, and the scars are nearly as large as pennies.

An Evening World proporter called at the haps which might betall her child, and she was almost frantic.

The park police had been asked to drag the lakes and reservoirs, but the nearest lake to the home of the Wahlbergs was more than a mile away, to be reached only by the Seventy-ninth street entrance to the park. The reservoirs are both fenced in impassably to such a babe.

The husband is stout in his insistence that some one, fascinated by the great beauty of the little girl, which is the marvel of all the neighbors, has stolen and taken her away.

He is still walking up and down the streets in his search, and has taken neither food nor rest since Wednesday.

Detective Edward F, Doyle, of the Twenty-seventh Precinet, has been specially detailed to search for the lost one, and every police-for merit is secured in the enormous the Turkien Cross-Cur Croanerres.